autonomous agents and intelligent co-workers capable of reasoning, planning, and actively supporting human tasks. It highlighted key trends shaping AI in 2026 and beyond, including generative AI, large language models (LLMs), and advanced computing hardware, which are transforming creativity, productivity, and innovation across sectors.

Aligned with the vision of AI for Atmanirbhar Bharat, the lecture emphasized the role of higher education institutions in nurturing indigenous AI talent, research, and innovation ecosystems, while also addressing ethical considerations, limitations, and the importance of responsible AI adoption. He discussed real-world workplace adoption while balancing the hype with ethical concerns and limitations. The core message is that AI should be used as a responsible partner that amplifies human potential, not replaces it.

Dr. Ashish Kumar, President, Institution's Innovation Council (IIC), in his concluding remarks emphasized the need to deploy AI for the benefit of people, planet, and inclusive growth, in accordance with the three-sutra framework for shaping a sustainable AI future. He highlighted that AI must be human-centric, environmentally conscious, and economically empowering.

At the conclusion of the session, Dr. Ashish Kumar expressed his sincere thanks to Dr. Aman Sharma for delivering an insightful and expert lecture, and appreciated his valuable contribution toward advancing AI awareness and responsible adoption among students and faculty.
